SPORT NOTES

As we understand it Pitcher Pfeffer of the Dodgers is called Jeff because his name is Ed.

Ad Wolgast has claimed the world's lightweight championship so often that he believes it himself.

Chicago fans are rejoicing over the news that a telescope has just been invented with a scope of 900 miles. Now they can all get a peek at the world's series.

If Bob Groom's batting average gets much smaller he'll soon be able to wear it around his neck.

McGraw has tied a string to Jim Thorpe so often that the Chief is beginning to resemble a department store parcel.

The reedbird season is under way again and yet we find the U. S. army woefully unprepared.

Heine Zimmerman in any other uniform would be fired just as often.

Even when she's off her stride on the links a pretty woman is a fair golfer.

Philadelphia fans are getting ready for a big treat when Ping Bodie reports to the Mackmen. Ping, you know, is a ukulele player!

Barney Dreyfuss has just issued pamphlet No. 15 showing why the National Commission should award George Staler to the Pirates.

Eddie Flank is suffering from an overdose of clams. Thought it was a case of too much Mackerel.

Specs Meadows pitched 10 straight balls the other day. Despite his augmented ocular equipment Lee couldn't see the plate.

Robinson, formerly of the State Supreme Court and now Republican nominee for governor, has returned to the state from a vacation spent at Atlantic City, N. J., and is preparing to begin an active campaign on the stump throughout the state. To this end he has cancelled a number of speaking dates arranged for him by law associations and the like, including an address before the annual convention this week in Chicago of the American Bar Association.

One Minute Talks with Ballplayers

FRANK BAKER, NEW YORK YANKEES:
"I am not worried about my batting eye despite my long layoff owing to injuries. I have been hitting them in practice and the ball looks as big as ever. Once I get into my stride in a season I never have much trouble even if I am out for a while. The trouble is in getting started in the spring."

"It is the pitching that I rely on to carry the Yankees through this year. We have the best pitching staff in the league now, and it is pitching the best ball. In a close finish it's the pitching that counts the most."

"I know how it used to count with us in Philadelphia, and we had a slugging team. But we depended on the pitchers."

FAIRBANKS HEARS OF NOMINATION

Notification Ceremony at Indianapolis Drew a Large Crowd.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 1.—For the second time in his public career Charles Warren Fairbanks accepted the nomination for Vice President of the United States on the Republican ticket, in an address delivered on the lawn of his home late yesterday afternoon.

Republican leaders gathered from all parts of the country to witness the ceremonies. Mr. Fairbanks was first nominated and elected Vice President on the ticket with Theodore Roosevelt in 1904.

Former Gov. A. O. Eberhardt, of Minnesota, was chairman of the notification ceremonies, and introduced United States Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, of Illinois, who made the formal speech in which Mr. Fairbanks received official notice of his nomination at the Republican National convention in Chicago last June. The addresses were comparatively short, and all three speakers agreed in saying that there will be a Republican victory at the election. Democratic acts and policies were condemned and the statements made that the Republican party offered the only relief of the conditions described.

Among the national leaders who witnessed the ceremonies were National Chairman Wilcox, A. T. Hart, the western campaign manager, and Ralph D. Cole, chairman of the National Speakers' Bureau. Mr. Wilcox conferred with Indiana leaders of the party and heard reports of what has been done. He expressed himself as pleased with their actions.

A rally last night at which Mr. Wilcox and Senator Sherman spoke closed the ceremonies. Both the notification and rally were attended by large crowds.
